The Patent Office Gazette Goes to Every Part of the World and Costs
United States Government

[Washington Star:] "We believe we have the widest circulation of any publication in the United States." Such a statement, one would naturally expect from the manager of the advertising section of one of the monthly magazines or the head of the circulation department of a lurid yellow daily; but it does not come from either. It was simply the modest statement of Mr. J. W. Babson, chief of the division of issue and gazette of the patent office, when he was asked to testify as to the circulation of the Patent Gazette of the patent office. These were what the inquirer desired, however, and Mr. Babson responded apologetically as he answered: "The widest circulation, I said. We have only 7,000 copies of the Gazette," and then, familiar with the claims of the magazines, weeklies and dailies, he laughed at the claim of Mr. Bab-

is probably no publication in the which was as wide a circulation
the Patent Office Gazette. There many papers that print and sell million copies of every issue whose would pay as many dollars as world of publishers. It is larger than any weekly or monthly published in this country, the last issue, that of July, containing 269 illustrated pages, besides editorials and indexes. Of this number of pages every inch of space was devoted to advertising some particular thing in which the publisher, the United States, has absolutely no proprietary interest of any kind whatever, and from the sale of which he der, and from the sale of which it can derive absolutely no direct benefit. That is not all of the strangeness of this strange periodical. All its advertising is absolutely free of charge to the advertiser. It would not be a creditable sort of a publication for a private firm to issue. It has an editorial force of fourteen people, who are paid, in aggregate, about $15,000 per year; the photolithographic work in tion with its illustrations cost last year $32,000, and the bill for the printing amounted to $159,000, making a total cost of publication $256,000. The subscription price is $5 per year, so that with its 7,000 copies the income from subscriptions, the only income it could have, could not be more than $35,000. Under any circumstances, and as happens its paid subscription list not contain more than 2,500 pages, the bulk of the remaining 4,700

pages being distributed free of charge.
It would seem that the publishers of this remarkable magazine lost last year $221,800, and created a proportionate deficit annually every year of the thirty-two it has been published in its present form.
The Patent Office Gazette is, however, one of the few

one of the most valuable or the most important government publications and the persons interested in that class of literature know that it is worth far more to the country than the paltry character of a million it costs. The value of the Gazette is not to be estimated in mere figures, it is said, because it is the only means that exists for introducing to the public the new ideas, in the form of inventions, and are born of old Mother Necessity, represented by the industrial and economic conditions. It is through the Gazette, first of all, that the people are made acquainted with the innumerable contrivances and devices that have emanated from the inventive genius of the world which tend toward the progress of civilization and the reduction of the cost of production. Thomas A. Edison and Alexander

Mr. Graham Bell received their first taste of publicity through the columns of this periodical, and thousands of labor-saving devices have been brought to the attention of men who had money to manufacture and sell them on the market through this valuable publication. In the Gazette the government of the United States has the form of a proud father son, A. D. Leggett, commissioner of patents, from 1871 to 1874, was the originator of the Gazette in its present weekly form. For about twenty years prior to the publication of the ity bulletin the office had been in habit of issuing annual reports of patents issued and the decisions of commissioner. It was found that these reports did not accomplish the purpose it was intended they should, because the matter did not reach the persons interested in time to be of great value. Therefore Commissioner Lockett decided to make a change and on January 1, 1901, the

Almost Murder in Small Main Street Hotel.

Strange Guests Assault the Owner of House.

Prompt Repose of Roomers Prevents a Tragedy.

Harvey Robbins, proprietor of the Alaska rooming-house at Fourth and Main streets, was the victim of a murderous assault at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, and but for the prompt response of some of his tenants to his calls for help, he probably would have been killed. Robbery was the motive for the assault, and the men committed by two well-dressed men unknown to their victim. Their attempt to loot the place was not successful. The robbers succeeded in making their escape before any of the roomers who ran to the assistance of Robbins had seen them.

The plan adopted by the thugs to get their victim to some spot where the assault probably would not be witnessed was very simple. Shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday morning the two strangers entered the Alaska House and asked Robbins to show them a room. Belated applications for accommodations are not unusual at this hour and the proprietor, ignorant of the fact that it was so late. The men were not intoxicated and there was nothing about them that caused the landlord to be suspicious. Stepping behind his desk he asked them to register which they did at 3 o'clock, the name of M. A. Rice and George Mandey. They asked for a quiet room, saying they intended to sleep late.

Little thinking of the motive of his guests, Robbins showed them to one of the rear rooms, away from the main hallway. He unlocked the door and entered the room, and, as he raised his hands to turn on the light, one of the men asked him to get some more. The other dealt him a terrible blow on the head, knocking him to his knees.

The first robber tried to place his hand over Robbins's mouth to prevent a outcry, but although dazed, Robbins managed to get some noise heard from his mouth, and began yelling for help at the top of his voice. Then the men asked him to get some more, and he tried to knock him senseless before assistance could arrive. One of the men tried to search Robbins's pockets, but he still resisted and in the room the struggle continued for a minute or two—it seemed like an hour to Robbins.

The cries of the landlord aroused the house, and the occupants of other rooms began opening their doors to see certain what the trouble was. Realizing that they would soon be surrounded by a mob, the men fled through the almost senseless on the floor and down the hallway. They left the building through the rear entrance and, and it was fortunate for them that they took that route. Patrolman Kennedy crossed the street, and hearing the cries, ran to the scene, locating them. He first went into an adjoining room, but soon found that his captives were in the rear hallway. He entered the Alaska House and must have been on the stairs when the two villains fled. He saw them running toward the Fourth-street entrance. They ran toward Los Angeles street and got away from the hotel. The man who was a physician was called and beaten. A man who was a doctor was called and beaten. ### SCOTT'S GOOD BRAW.

Likely to Occasion Fresh Boom in Sale of Unclaimed Baggage and Junk.

Walter Scott, car foreman of the Santa Fe, struck it rich, drawing a prize trunk in the unclaimed-baggage sale. The trunk was heavy and seemed as if it ought to be worth more than $25, and the prize was a good one. "Two bits" and the trunk was his. It was some time before a key could be found to fit the lock, but at last it snapped back and the lid was raised.

"Heavens, nothing but dirty, moldy, olden clothes," said one of the neighbors who had dropped in out of curiosity.

"Well, wait a minute: we haven't begun to dig yet," answered Scott, as he tossed the wearing apparel on the floor.

"Hello, what's this?" and he held up a chain and a gold watch with the seal Waltham movement.

"Oh, yes, these are some of the best," he said, and then a fine Colt's revolver was dug up, and there was a good set of boxing gloves, showing that the former owner of the trunk prize was only an amateur boxer. There was a large harmonica in a black case, showing that he cared a little for music as well as for fistic sport. A small harmonica was hidden in Scott's little son and here was where the real surprise package was concealed.

"Oh, papa, there's something in the bottom," and he shook and shook and hit the side with his chubby fist.

A wad of bills fell to the floor and he found that two $20 notes and two $10 notes, and two $20 gold pieces and two French coins, and stuffed into the bottom of the trunk. Scott found the cigars among the boys yesterday.

HOOF CUT OFF.

Four-horse Team Struck by Southern Pacific Train at First and Alameda Streets.

J. W. Norick, a teamster, was driving in a four-horse team attached to a heavy truck west along East First street about 8:30 o'clock last night. The horses were going at a trot and when they approached the Southern Pacific tracks at Alameda street, the driver did not have sufficient control to stop them suddenly.

Just as the leaders started across the Santa Ana freight train came along and the horses were struck. The train knocked them clear of the track, causing the pole horses to be dragged off their feet and clear of the track. Norick was thrown and severely bruised, but not seriously injured. One of the horses fell with its hoof across the track and the wheels passed over it. The animal was shot by a patrolman. The night before a team had crashed through the gates at that crossing, breaking both, otherwise the would have been lowered last night.

Walter Scott, car foreman of the Santa Fe, struck it rich, drawing a prize trunk in the unclaimed-baggage

• HIS COURAGE WANED.

• BUT BUNCE IS NOT CRAZY.

As seventy-four-year-old W. W. Bunce, a veteran of the Civil War, sat by the ocean at Santa Monica, he heard the sad sea waves saying to him: "Come to me! Come to me!" and the rhythmic monotone of their voices al-

But he arose and said: "I won't come, I won't come! I love my wife and home," and he didn't go.

But a little later Bunce took it into his head that it would be a good thing to commit suicide, and he invited his wife to join him in a hari-kari party. She declined and he became imbued with the idea that she was infatuated with a ; an named Reynolds, and he

Yesterday Bunce was examined for insanity. His wife said she brought her husband to the Soldiers' Home about two years ago, when he was in a very bad state of health. His thoughts ran to suicide and he imagined a man whom he had made welcome to his home at Sawtelle, and who

Mrs. Bunice said, is a sufferer from an incurable disease and must soon pass away, was trying to undermine him in her affection.

The old man talked in such a manner as to indicate excellent education and said that he would not for a moment reflect upon his wife, other than to say that she had become infatuated with Reynolds, and that their home had been made very unhappy.

Whatever of truth this may be about Bunce, it was he. Apparently yesterday, and he was discharged.

DEARBKAUGH DIVORCE.
LENGTHY MARRIAGE RECORD.
Anna R. Dearbaugh had her innings yesterday in her attempt to get a divorce from John Dearbaugh, the veteran whom she has had arrested and put under bonds, and whose ire had been aroused by a man snooping around his house, at whom he took a pot-shot.

It came out in evidence yesterday that Mrs. Deerbough has had a wide martial experience—indeed, it seems to run in her family. Deerbough is her fifth husband, the previous four being very much alive, and her daughter by one of these previous marriages, who also appeared on the witness stand.

THE RULING HABIT.
CRAZY FRED WOODWORTH.

Fred Woodworth has led the trustees and the jailor at the City Prison an arduous dance for some time past, until in utter despair a complaint was filed against him charging insanity. Yesterday he was before a commission in lunacy.

The man had been sent on the chain gang for thirty days for petty larceny, and he began his antics one day recently when the gang was returning from work. As he sat in the wagon he stripped himself of all his clothes, and wanted to disport himself in nudity. Then, when taken to his cell he continued to act queerly, and showed a cosmopolitan taste in stealing things. There was no hope of his being able to keep anything, as his pecculations were always noted, but he couldn't rest easy unless laying hands on some-

"What do you cover your head with the blankets for?" Judge Wilbur asked him.

"Cold," and as Woodworth uttered the single word he looked at the court as if to inquire what more information he could possibly want.

"How do you account for your wanting to take these things?" was the next question.

"Bughouse."

This monosyllabic answer was snapped off apparently in good faith by the patient, but without the glimmer of appreciation that he was not giving the most explicit replies.

"Are there any members of your family in the asylum?"

"Mother."

"How do you feel?"
"Oh," and he shrugged his shoulders, "just a bughouse feeling."
"You must explain," said the court:
"what do you do these peculiar things for?"
"Just to be funny, I guess."
The man added that he had been in the State's Prison at Denver, and had tramped to Los Angeles from Kansas City. He was ordered committed.

MURDERED MAN'S ESTATE.
KEARNEY'S CASH DISTRIBUTED.
The order of distribution was made by Judge Wilbur yesterday in the estate of John B. Kearney, who was shot down in the Berwick Hotel and killed by Philip Lee, the hackman now doing time in the State's Prison for the crime of murder.
At the time of Kearney's death J.

McGarry was appointed administrator of the estate on the nomination of a nephew and niece of the deceased residing at San Francisco, who are the sole heirs. There was found on deposit with the Southwestern National Bank the sum of $1926.15, and after the expenses of the funeral and administration had been paid, there remained $177 to be paid to Frank and Mary McLaughlin, each, the relatives

Under the order now made these amounts will be at once remitted to the McLaughlins.

NEW HOSPITAL: The Seaside Hospital has incorporated with a capital stock of $75,000, of which $15,000 has been subscribed. The hospital is to be carried on Santa Monica and the directors comprise the medical men of that city and Ocean Park—F. S. Lind say, H. L. Coffman, J. S. Hunt, J. H. W. H. Parker.

USED HIS TEETH. Henry Swanson, the colored man who was examined for insanity and discharged, and immediately rearrested upon developing violent traits, was again before the lunacy commission yesterday. The patient appeared perfectly rational and spoke of his condition sensibly. His old father came out from Atlanta to take his son back home. nu it was not thought possible for the patient to be entrusted to the father.

SWEET VOICE IN HIDEOUS DEN.

Fallen Negress Draws Tears in San Bernardino.

Place of Rain-Bears and Wildcat Come to Valley from Mountains. Young Man Attempts Suicide but Doctors Save Him.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 26.—A negress, who claims to have been connected with the colored sacred concert jubilee singers, who have held special bound the audiences at the Long Beach Chautauque, is attracting attention in the San Bernardino district by her sweet singing. For nights past pedestrians have stopped in awe to listen to the singer, whose voice, raised in such lofty anthems as "The Messiah" and "The Holy City," has floated from the end of the most notorious dens in the district. She is an inmate of the house, and while sipping the red wine, entertains her lewd companions, though some of them have left the place on account of the pathos of her voice, which has moved many to tears.

WOULD SHUFFLE OFF.
Floyd Upman, a well-known young man about town, attempted to commit suicide here yesterday by taking a dose of poison, but was prevented by the quick response of Drs. Dickie and Aldridge, who saved him after a severe course of treatment. The youth is infatuated with a woman of the half world, who is alleged to have spurned his attentions. Entering a restaurant, he poured a poison powder into a glass and gulped down the contents, was soon in convulsions.

HALF INCH OF RAIN.
A fierce electrical storm passed over this valley last night, the lightning and heavy thunder creating alarm. At the first clap of thunder many horses standing on the streets ran away, while dogs sought the protection of stores and howled dementally. Late in the night a storm culminated in a drenching rain, which fell in a limited area. Old San Bernardino, Harlem, Mentone and Highland, reported the precipitation amounted to half an inch.

UNFORTUNATE NEGRO.
Charles Parker, a young negro, was brought in from Victor this morning to be examined for insanity. He has lucid moments during which he alleges that his mental state is due to ill treatment at the hands of a notorious old man, who has threatened the county as "Snowball," whom he says has kept him in a state of servitude, worse than slavery, since last February. Yesterday Parker managed to elude the vigilance of his captor, and boarding a Santa Fe caboose, aimed to ride to Barstow and escape, but at Oro Grande he became insane and leaping from the train, led the officers a long chase across the desert.

BEARS IN VINEYARD.
John Klaus, a winery owner, living between here and Redlands, reports that yesterday, while walking through his vineyard he came upon a bear and two cubs. He returned to the place later with a rifle, but the cubs had fled. The same morning a large wildcat was almost run over near here by a traction car. It is believed the unusual electrical storms on the mountains are driving the wild animals to the valley.

IN BRIEF.
The Board of Trade last night passed a resolution calling upon the government to purchase all private lands within the forest reserves, as a means of protecting the timber. The board was addressed on the subject by W. C. Campbell, organizer for the National Irrigation Association.

Thomas F. Weldon, a Santa Fe boiler-maker, died yesterday of pneumonia, after two weeks' illness with typhoid fever.

Last night thieves ransacked the residence of Chief Dispatcher J. E. Butler, of the Santa Fe, securing a lot of plunder.

REDLANDS.

LITTLE GIRL SHOTS HORSE.
REDLANDS, July 26.—The seven-year-old daughter of Max Henrich of Cranston was investigating the "how" of a loaded shotgun yesterday, and she accidentally pressed the trigger, and decided a charge of birdshot that barely missed her brother. The boy, who is about 11, started down hunting about 1 o'clock last night, hitching the horse to a wagon and inviting his little sister to accompany him. About a mile from the village the horse was stopped, and the boy got out to it. While he was fastening the harness to the horse, the little girl began to handle the gun, and hit upon the right combination. The shot entered the fleshy part of one of the horse's hind legs and inflicted a ugly wound. The horse was led home, and a veterinarian thinks he can save life and limb. Yet a slight deflection of the gun saved the boy.

MOUNTAIN STORMS.

Heavy clouds have hung over the surrounding mountains for days, and there has been every prospect of rain, some persons even predicting cloud-bursts, but with the exception of considerable humidity in the atmosphere, the moisture has not materialized. There has been comparatively little rain in the mountains, although Seven Oaks, Santa Ana Cañon and Bear Valley report light falls. Brilliant electrical displays are taking place every night in the heavens, accompanied by heavy thunder.

ONTARIO.

ONE TRUPPEL ACQUITTED.
ONTARIO, July 26.—Chester Truppel, tried on the charge of having illegally sold liquor, was acquitted by a jury last evening. The first witness yesterday afternoon was H. W. Lynch, one of the spotters. Contradicting his friend Blair, who made the statement on Saturday that he gave Lynch half of the quart of whiskey which he brought with him from Los Angeles, Lynch said he gave none whatever to him.

Mr. Gooch, a chemistry expert, was called to test the contents of the quart, which the spotters claimed to have brought from Truppel. After making several tests he pronounced it whiskey. The trial of R. S. Truppel, charged with having kept a disorderly house on the 2nd inst., will be held Thursday.

VAGRANT RAIN IN RIVERSIDE.

HALF-HOUR DELUGE FOLLOWED BY DRY NORTHER.

Rare Summer Shower Extends Over a Sharply Defined Area. Quarterly Conference of Arlington Methodists—City's Total Assessment About Seven Millions.

RIVERSIDE. July 26.—Last night this city was visited about 9:30 by a rare shower of rain for half an hour, and today things are drying up in a northern. A rain in July for this section has only two precedents since the records first began in 1880: In 1883, a heavy shower fell, amounting to .25 of an inch; and in 1884, .05 of an inch fell. The rain since last night was strictly limited. About .35 of an inch fell in the business part of the city, Highgrove got even more; the rest of the city got .15 of an inch. San Bernardino in the other direction, were not touched.

THAT WATER CASE.
F. C. Finkle, the Los Angeles Civil Engineer, who has made a geological and topographical study of the Ferris and Menifee valleys and the surrounding ranges, was the witness, who occupied the stand today in the big water case. The effect of the operation of the pumping plants, Mr. Finkle testified, is to intercept and reverse the flow of the water in the valleys, which is continuous, and originally had a general slope westerly toward the Perris Valley and southwesterly toward the Menifee Valley. The lowering of the water plane at the pumps has had its effect throughout the valley, turning the flow of all the water toward the pumps.

Water is being drawn from Mr. Newport's north ranch, directly toward Ethenas, where the Chase wells are located, and from his south ranch toward the pumping stations of the Temescal Water Company. On Mr. Newport's home ranch the water level is lower than on the south ranch, and the south ranch, nine feet.

Witness estimated that up to June, about 100,000 cubic feet of water had been taken from the valley by the Temescal Water Company—enough, had it been taken from one square mile, to lower the water 40 feet below the surface. Assuming a uniform lowering of the water level, it would amount to a loss of 130 square miles.
